

Glen & Paula Davis

Glen and Paula are nationally appointed home missionaries with the Assemblies of God, and have been given the privilege of representing Jesus to the future leaders of the world at Stanford University.

Together, they lead Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship at Stanford. Prior to establishing the ministry at Stanford, they helped to lead a Chi Alpha ministry in Springfield, MO.

www.glenandpaula.com

Chi Alpha Campus Ministries

Chi Alpha is the Assemblies of God outreach to colleges and universities. There are over 200 Chi Alpha groups in America, and many more around the world.

Chi Alpha takes its name from two Greek letters which stand for the phrase Christ's Ambassadors.

Why Reach Stanford?

Because it's like a steering wheel to our society—as goes the campus, so goes the culture. Just think about this: four of America's nine Supreme Court Justices are Stanford alumni.

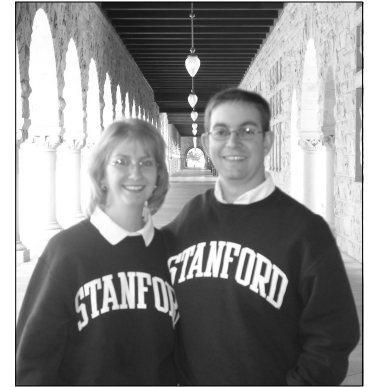

And it's not just America that Stanford influences—the president of Peru is a Stanford graduate. In fact, 1/4 of the students are from another country, and the two most represented nations are China and India.

Today they learn, but tomorrow they lead. These future world-changers must be reached with the gospel while they are more open than they will ever be again!

Glen & Paula Davis

Glen and Paula are nationally appointed home missionaries with the Assemblies of God, and have been given the privilege of representing Jesus to the future leaders of the world at Stanford University.

Together, they lead Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship at Stanford. Prior to establishing the ministry at Stanford, they helped to lead a Chi Alpha

www.glenandpaula.com

Chi Alpha Campus Ministries

Chi Alpha is the Assemblies of God outreach to colleges and universities. There are over 200 Chi Alpha groups in America, and many more around the world.

Chi Alpha takes its name from two Greek letters which stand for the phrase Christ's Ambassadors.

Why Reach Stanford?

Because it's like a steering wheel to our society—as goes the campus, so goes the culture. Just think about this: four of America's nine Supreme Court Justices are Stanford alumni.

And it's not just America that Stanford influences—the president of Peru is a Stanford graduate. In fact, 1/4 of the students are from another country, and the two most represented nations are China and India.

Today they learn, but tomorrow they lead. These future world-changers must be reached with the gospel while they are more open than they will ever be again!